FRENCH FEAR OF GERMAN BLOCKS PEACE IN EUROPE

Paris Affrighted by Threats of Strong, Reconstructed Teuton Foe Must Get Life Insurance

CAN'T GET FROM U. S. AND BRITAIN, WILL MAKE IT FOR SELF

DUSSELDORF, April 17. —The one big stumbling block in the way of peace in the Ruhr—and in Europe—is France's fear of a reconstructed Germany, again powerful and capable of annihilating France if left to face her alone.

President Wilson saw this when he agreed with Britain to stand by France in the event of unprovoked aggression on the part of Germany

Nothing short of some kind of guarantee against such a fate will ever budge France from astride the Rhine.

If Great Britain will not give it to her, nor America, nor the two together, then France will follow out a policy all her own—a "safety first" policy—from which nothing short of superior force can turn her.

That is my outstanding impression after visits to Paris, London, Berlin and the cluster of German Pittsburgs which merge, one city into another, here in the Ruhr.

Washington Busy

I have means of knowing the government at Washington as well as that of London constantly is putting out feelers both in Paris and Berlin.

Berlin, I know, is anxious to reach a settlement. And so is Paris. The hitch is not over the actual question of reparations, for Premier Poincare is still willing to accept $50,000,000,000 gold marks in addition to what Germany has already paid on account.

The problem which the United States and Britain have to solve, if they are to act as arbitrators in the Ruhr dispute, is how France may be secured against another German invasion.

Whatever objections Premier Poincare may have to Secretary Hughes' plan to have a commission of experts ascertain how much Germany can pay are not because he fears they would fix upon a too small sum but because the plan does not take into consideration France's national security.

One Solution

A combination of the Hughes plan to determine the question of reparations and Lord Robert Cecil's suggestion that the League of Nations work out a scheme which would satisfy France's anxiety for her own safety is not an impossibility.

But one thing is certain, France left by her two strongest allies—America and Britain—to face Germany alone, has leaped astride the Rhine.

She is in the Ruhr, Germany's one big industrial center, without which Germany would find it very difficult to wage a successful war.

And there France will stay until either she can get the life insurance she is after or until she hammers out a guarantee for herself and in her own way, let anyone object who may.

First Woman City Manager In U. S. Boosts Her Town to World

PORTLAND, Ore. Apr. 18.—A woman has come out to sell a city to the world!

The woman is Mrs. R. E. Barrett of Seaside, Ore., and the city—Warrenton, a short dozen miles away on the Pacific coast.

Can she do it? Well—

Mrs. Barrett has been appointed city manager of Warrenton—the first woman city manager in the United States. The city commission chose her from a list of 20 eligibles, and the choice was unanimous. They have confidence in her ability because of her past successes.

For example, she it was who accomplished the diverting of Montana wheat through the Columbia river gateway. Formerly the wheat had been sent east. Mrs. Barrett addressed farmers' meetings, canvassed Montana wheat lands and induced railroads to lower their freight rates so that the now thousands of bushels are sent to the Columbia's mouth yearly.

Besides being influenced by this achievement of Mrs. Barrett's, the Warrenton commission also remembered the good work done by its woman mayor, Miss Clara C. Munson. She voided the argument against women in politics, or as civic leaders.

Now this city of 2000 is waiting for further development under Mrs. Barrett. And she's confident she can do it.

MRS. R. E. BARRETT

"I am sure Warrenton has a splendid future," she says. "You know, salesmanship is my forte. Now, if I can sell Warrenton to the world—my, won't that be fine? Surely we can gain for the little city the reputation of being a nice, happy place where everyone gets along and where all people like each other."

ROBSION THINKS PARK FORTHCOMING

Optimistic on Matter—Says State Geologist and Interior Representatives Coming to Inspect Site

That Congressman J. M. Robsion is very optimistic in regard to obtaining a National Park at the Cumberland Gap site is reported by Joseph F. Bosworth who talked with Mr. Robsion in Louisville last week. A bill providing for such a park was introduced by the congressman from this district last congress and another will be introduced by him this session.

Congressman Robsion said that W. S. Jillson, state geologist, was to be in this section this week to look over the Cumberland Gap site and make surveys to be submitted to the national department. Representatives from the Interior Department, then, are expected here some time next week to go over the proposed location more extensively and make a detailed report on it The recommendations of these two parties will have a great deal of weight in securing the park.

Mayor J. H. Keeney has signified his intention of employing a wagon or two at the city's expense to aid in the hauling of garbage next week when the spring clean-up campaign begins. Dr. Hays says that a dumping ground is being formed outside the city where all the garbage may be deposited.

FORTUNE GIVEN TO EDUCATION

One Million Dollars and 16,000 Acres Of Land Extent of Gift Just Announced (FRANKFORT, Ky., April 18.—A gift of $1,000,000 and 16,000 acres of rich timber lands from E. I Robinson, Fort Thomas, Ky., to be used in the educational, agricultural and economic development of the mountains of Eastern Kentucky, wasannounced here today by Ed C. O'Rear, president of the board of trustees of the newly incorporated E O. Robinson Mountain Fund.

The University of Kentucky Lexington, will take active charge of the work of development according to Judge O'Rear. The tentative program calls for development of the entire mountainous section on a scale hitherto undreamed of, Judge O'Rear said. Immediate plans contemplate the setting aside of 15,000 acres as a reforestration project, and the utilization of the remaining 1,000 acres for experiment station farms, similar to the ones in operation at the University of Kentucky.

The land is located in Breathitt, Perry and Knott counties.

Maintenance of one or more schools by the University of Kentucky in this territory with extensive work in horticultural subjects is outlined in the development program.

Two farms of 500 acres each were set aside to be used in experimental work. These farms are located near Quicksand, Breathitt county.

No "strings" are tied to the gift, according to Judge O'Rear.

Mr. Robinson owned considerable property involved in the recent Henry Ford deal and it is reported he disposed of aproximately 42,000 acres when Ford took over the Peabody holdings in Kentucky.

WIND, MIGHTIER THAN "BOOM" PUTS MYSTIC SIGN IN DUST

The wind, mighty unseen force, baffled in its attempts to solve the mystery of "BOOM", wrenched the canvas from its fastenings this morning and the inspiring, yet mystifying, word was trailed in the dust.

The owner of the sign and originator of the word whose identity and purpose yet remains a profound secret, stood on the street corner and gnashed his teeth as he saw the creature of his brain thus brought down to the dust. Fearing that he would disclose himself as the originator of "BOOM" if he displayed any undue interest in its reclamation, he engaged the services of the sign painter who put the cloth back in place.

"Boom is on the bum" remarked a bystander as the wind threatened to tear the sign to shreds. Others fear that the mystery would never be solved but now that the word has been restored they have hopes.

Who is the daddy of "BOOM?"

HALE CONCERT IS BEAUTIFUL

Most Wonderful Musical Recital Here in Years, Unanimous Verdict of Audiance

That the most wonderful musical concert heard here in many a day was the one given by Richard Hale last night at the Central School auditorium, was the unanimous verdict of those who heard him. The singer's voice, a rich baritone, is beautiful and expressive beyond description, and his stage presence and interpretative gifts gave to his recital a touch unequaled except by the greatest artists. A fair-sized audience was in attendance to hear him.

From the dramatic "Credo" from "Othello," marvelously rendered, with which he opened his program, through the delicately artistic German and French melodies, the tender lyrics, the graphic Masefieldian songs and the negro spirituelles which made up his program, Richard Hale was almost perfect. Middlesboro was indeed fortunate to get such an artist here. Mrs. Ailsie Riley Alderson accompanied Mr. Hale beautifully and her interpretation of the songs fitted admirably with the singer's. It was through Mrs. Alderson's efforts that Mr. Hale. her cousin, came here.

The program of the recital follows:

Credo from Othello, Verdi: Auf dem Wasser zu Singer, Schubert; Auf dem Gruenen Balcon. Hugo Wolf; Tes Yeux Rabey; Obstination. DeFontanailles: As Fair is She as Noonday Light. Rachmaninoff; Tommy Lad. Margetson; Sea Fever (Masefield) John Ireland; Cargoes (Masefield), Tom Dodson; My Lawd What a Mornin', Burleigh; I Want to Be Ready, Burleigh; Some o' Dese Days, Guion.

For his encores, Mr. Hale sang, with rare feeling, several familiar favorites, "O Sole Mio," "The Rosary," "Mother Machree," and Tosti's "Good-Bye."

MANY VISITORS AT M. E. REVIVAL LAST NIGHT

"Choose ye this day whom ye shall serve," was the theme of the sermon which Rev. O. H. Callis preached to the largest crowd that has yet attended the revival. Rev. Frakes of Pineville was present with a large delegation from there. Rev. H. C. Summers of Winchester and Rev. Ewall of Fort Thomas district Y. M. C. A. secretaries, were present at the meeting. A number went to the prayer room and there were three professions and three accessions to the church.

The meeting at the Motch Motor company garage was well attended this morning. A man may be favorably known by his business associates and even by his intimate friends and family and still be a base sinner in the sight of God, the evangelist declared. The morning prayer meetings held at homes are being well attended.

"Tragedy of Sin" is the subject for tonight. The Boosters will meet at 7 o'clock.

A short religious service will be held at the Middlesboro Hardware store by Rev. O. H. Callis at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. All men and boys are invited to attend.

FLORIDA LEGISLATURE COMMITTEE INVESTIGATING CASE

By Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Apr. 18.—John Gardner, 18, who said, previous to his enlisting in the army, he was a resident of Altoona, Pa., gave a description of the lashing by a convict whipping boss that he received. A legislature committee is investigating alleged brutalities in Florida convict camps. He declared he was whipped three times one week. He said he got fifty licks each time and Walter Higginbotham was the whipping boss. He said he committed no offense and that he was whipped because the boss mistook him for a member of a squad from another camp who were whipped because they complained about the treatment they received previously.

Higginbotham is indicted on a charge of murder in connection with the death of Martin Talbot of North Dakota whose death followed a flogging.

Gardner said after the whipping he was unable to lay on his back for a month and that Higginbotham said he would kill Gardner next time. The witness corroborated other witnesses who told of Higginbotham whipping Tabert four days before the latter died. Gardner said it was a common thing for ten or a dozen prisoners to be whipped daily.

FOR A BETTER MIDDLESBORO

Specific improvements make up the details of a campaign for a BIGGER AND BETTER MIDDLESBORO, and a list is to be compiled of these details, for use from day to day. Today we are advocating:

That our passenger depot be made a cleaner, more sightly and more sanitary place at once, and that the ut most influence be brought to bear toward getting a new station.

That a general movement for street improvement be instituted immediately, with emphasis on repair and construction of Cumberland Avenue.

That a system of street marking be devised in this city so that a stranger or for that matter, a resident, can find his way around without undue inquiries.

That the ordinance prohibiting spitting in public places be rigidly enforced and the practice be condemned as repugnant and unsanitary. ... .

That the spiritual side may not be neglected in the campaign for a Better Middlesboro, but rather that we should emphasize the importance of building spiritually as paramount to any material improvement.

That Middlesboro's lack of a fitting burial place be remedied and provisions for a cit yemetery be made.

A THOUGHT

Every man according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give; not grudgingly, or of necessity, for God loveth a cheerful giver.—II Cor. 9:7.

Great minds, like heaven, are pleased in doing good, though the ungrateful subjects of their favors are barren in return.—Rowe.

BETTER CEMETERIES

That Middlesboro has no adequate burial place for its dead is the opinion of all who have ever had the sad experience of accompanying a relative or friend to the last resting place or whose attention has otherwise been called to the matter. The smaller private cemeteries, illkept and overrun with briers and weeds, are almost inaccessible to vehicles.

Middlesboro needs an accessible, well-kept cemetery and the problem of obtaining one divides itself into two angles: To form a stock company of individuals and buy a new tract for use as a burying ground or to improve the Colson cemetery which seems to be the most desirable of the local burying grounds. To start off the subscriptions with a substantial amount. Since it is a proposition in which every member of the public should be interested, a campaign to raise money for the purpose of repairing the road would not be out of place. A small monthly payment by all the site owners would also hire a man to keep the place properly freed from weeds and other obnoxious plants and, perhaps, cultivate flowers there during the summer season

These are merely suggestions, the possible means whereby an end may be accomplished The glaring fact that our principal burying ground is at present in a bad condition exists and we owe it to our city ,to the respected dead, to the prime and ancient trait which has ever been a distinguishing mark of the human race, to inaugurate steps for its present and permanent improvement

All things considered, the latter plan seems to be most practicable. Many have relatives buried there and would loath to either move them to another ground or to bury other relatives at a different place. Others own lots there which they purchased because they thought it was destined to be the Middlesboro public cemetery. Local funeral directors say its location, terrain and general fitness for the purpose are about as desirable as can be found around Middlesboro.

But the road leading through the cemetery is rough and almost impassable, especially in rainy weather. The owner of the cemetery cannot afford to have the road repaired unless he should greatly increase the price of the burial sites.

It has been suggested that owners of plots in this cemetery contribute toward the repair of the road.. Local funeral directors are willing.

COURTESY WEEK

With the observance of "Courtesy Week" this week by the Ashland Kiwanis Club and all other Kiwanis club throughout the country, the story of the courtesy shown by Joseph, son of Jacob, about which today's Sunday school lesson is built.

One of the most beautiful examples of courtesy in all literature is that recorded about Joseph of Biblical fame. A newspaper man writing the story could with truth write its headline as "Courtesy Saves a Nation."

Joseph had received about as raw a deal as any man ever got. He was favored by his father, Jacob, and for that reason was hated by his ten older brothers. He was placed in a pit to die, then was lifted out and sold into slavery. Taken to Egypt by merchantmen, he was sold to the Egyptain Captain of the guard. Honored and trusted by the Egyptain, he was approached by the officer's wife to do a dishonorable deed, which he refused. For that he was placed in prison on perjured testimony.

Had Joseph become sour and discourteous, few would have blamed him. He had been abused and misused had suffered for doing the square thing. His high motives and ideals did not keep him out of jail. In jail he soon became a "trusty." He had the keys to the cells. Among the prisoners entrusted to his care were the erstwhile baker and butler of the Pharaoh, who lived a few hundred years before "King Tut," whose tomb was recently discovered. Joseph in making his regular rounds noticed that bothe the butler and baker had the "blues". Why should he worry about them? Surely he had enough troubles of his own. We might have thought so had we been in his place but Joseph was a real gentleman, though in the eyes of the Egyptians he was just a "jail bird."

Courtesy gave Joseph his big chance. His being Prime Minister of Egypt gave him the opportunity to save his own people from starvation. Their staying in Egypt for four hundred years made a strong nation of them and under Moses they were let out of Egypt into the promised land where they had a glorious history that began with Joseph's courtesy. It was reached its zenith under King Solomon. The real history of that nation courtesy in the providence of God. that saved the nation Clergymen and laymen who are Bible teachers may draw manly theological lessons from the story, but the big lesson is that courtesy pays everywhere—even in prison.—Ashland Independent.

THE OPEN FORUM

The Open Forum

Editor Daily News: In view of the fact that my name appeared in last night's issue of the Daily News as a traffic violator, I thought you would perhaps be good enough to hear my side of the case, although I would not have you think me a disgruntled party or opposed to traffic law enforcement.

My offense was that the tail light on my car went out. That is all right, but I ask you, now do you think any normal car could go the length of Cumberland Avenue without some disorder? I would have felt lucky to get off with only the tail light connection jolted loose. As it is, the springs in my car have also been broken and, although the car is comparatively new, the fenders, headlights and other loose parts rattle vehemently whenever I drive out, though I tighten them frequently.

I understand that the chiropractors came to Middlesboro especially because they heard about our streets and certain it is that they have already built up a good practice from those persons who have had various members dislocated by riding over our streets.

My point is, that if the city is going to spend so much time rigidly enforcing traffic laws, they ought to give the motorist a fair show. There is no danger of driving too fast on the streets here—everyone knows that. But surely the automobile license should be taken off and minor offenses forgiven, or else the streets should be mended so that a ride on them would not be quite such a punishment in itself.

An Unhappy Motorist.

LETTER FROM JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT, NEWLYWED, TO HIS BATCHELOR FRIEND, SYDNEY CARTON

DEAR SYD:

I wanted to have a talk with you before I left, but you know how rushed we all were.

I tried to explain to Leslie that my second marriage would be a quiet one.

Isn't it strange, Syd, that women have no sense of humor? She didn't see the joke of that remark. Her great eyes filled with tears and she asked me plaintively, "Jack, you could not marry any other woman if I should die or go out of your life?"

Of course I said, "No, dearest, I couldn't. Don't you see I was joking?" when I wanted to say, "I don t konw whether I would or not Other men have been marred more than once, you know."

Syd, I wonder how long it takes for people to be married before they can be perfectly honest with each other.

Leslie is a wonderful girl, and we are perfectly happy—I am finding out, however, that my wife is very sensitive The other night in the hotel there was a very fascinating looking widow whom I made the mistake of admiring to Leslie. I wish you could heard my wife lay her out. The poor woman had done nothing except smile at me once or twice.

I guess, Syd, I have got to mind my "P's and Q's" from now on. You know I wouldn't hurt Leslie for the world.

I can't help thinking what a terrible thing it would have been if I had taken your advice and made a confession to Leslie of the little Perier. She might have forgiven me but, Syd, she never would have forgotten and worse, I feel sure she would have never allowed me to forget . I tell you, I am going to play the game straight from now on.

It isn't going to be easy, old chap, because, as I told you before, Leslie, I am quite sure, has a jealous complex.

Did you see my mother after the wedding? I hope she got over her annoyance at not being the central figure in the whole business.

Mother is a dear woman, Syd, but I must say she thinks mighty well of herself. She thought it very strange that Leslie and I did not visit her on our wedding trip, and of course, laid it all to Leslie when nothing could have induced me to have made a visit to her at this time. I am mighty glad that Leslie and I are going to live far away from the whole maddening crowd of relatives. Without them Leslie and I will be perfectly happy.

Syd, you will never be as happy as I am until you have married the most wonderful girl in all the world and that you can never do because she is my wife.

I had intended writing you what the old man said to me. I did not foot him at all He's got my number all right. Will tell you about it the next time I write. Here comes Leslie.

JACK.

Berton Braley's Daily Poem
DOMESTICALLY SPEAKING
By Berton Braley

No doubt the centipede at home
Is gentle, generous and kind,
But centipedes abroad will roam
And when they do, I'm not inclined
To pat one gently on the head;
An if I did it, I'd be dead.
The cobra in his domicile,
Away from worriment and strife,
May greet his children with a smile;
And show affection to his wife;
But in his public life I'm prone
To leave the cobra quite alone.
For certain crooks and buccaneers
Apologists will make this plea—
"He's not as bad as he appears,
He's so good to his family!"
The cobra and the centipede
Might plead the same, but who would heed?

The women are wearing gaily colored shoes, and those with big feet get madder and madder.

DID YOU SHOW YOUR GOOD MANNERS AND THANK HER FOR THE COOKIE?
YAS - I THANKED HER - BUT I THINK THIS HAVING GOOD MANNERS IS THE BUNK!
THE BUNK? WHY DO YOU SAY IT'S THE BUNK?
WELL, I THANKED HER WHEN SHE GAVE ME THE COOKIE BUT IT DIDN'T DO ANY GOOD - SHE DIDN'T OFFER ME ANOTHER ONE!

DRIFTING THOUGHTS

The sun is setting low
Vague thoughts are drifting through my head.
This thought is round and rosy pink;
It makes me smile, it is so satisfied.
This thought is arched and crimson gold;
It flashes in and out the other thoughts
Just like a firefly.
This thought is royal purple;
It holds its head well up and walks with stately step
And this is drab and gray;
It is a Quaker thought.
The sun has left the sky,
And night has flung her arms about
My vague and drifting thoughts.
Good night. —Ellen Otis.

"I, myself, use Black-Draught for indigestion, and it is fine.

"I am glad to recommend anything that has been the help to my family that Black-Draught has.

"My present health is good. Have two boxes of Black-Draught in the house now."

Reducing Freight Loss and Damage Claims –

The Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company, in its effort to furnish efficient transportation service to its patrons, has for many months conducted an intensive educational campaign designed to eliminate the causes for loss and damage claims; and its management takes considerable pride in the results so far accomplished.

The tabulation below shows the number and value of all loss and damage claims filed with the L. & N. by its patrons during the years of 1920, '21 and '22; and the material reduction, both in the number of claims filed and the amount of money involved, is most gratifying.

Year	Number	Amount Claimed
1920	84,176	$3,144,930.46
1921	47,765	1,557,295.31
1922	36,378	1,220,913.18

It will be observed that in the course of two years there has been a reduction of approximately 57 per cent in the number of new claims filed and a reduction of 61 per cent in the amount claimed.

This satisfactory showing is due in a substantial degree to the hearty co-operation with which shippers have responded to the rules, approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission, governing the preparation of freight shipments; by packing in durable containers goods intended for less-than-carload shipments, thus avoiding damage when loaded into cars with other freight; by marking packages plainly as to name of consignee and destination; by removing old marks appearing on packages; and by furnishing legible billing and orders so as to avoid confusion and possible mis-routing.

The Louisville & Nashville Railroad appreciates the fact that its patrons do not enjoy the necessity of continually filing claims; and every possible effort is being made—and with commendable success—to impress upon its employees the imperative duty of handling freight at all times in such manner as to eliminate the possibility of loss and damage.

Washington Letter

NOW YOU KNOW WHAT THE PRESIDENT LIKES

By Harry B. Hunt

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Next to the supply of cigarets which President Harding keeps loose in the middle drawer of his desk where they can be reached with least effort and delay when he wants a smoke, the chief executive likes to have within reach a supply of good old-fashioned peanut brittle.

Doubtless this is a flare-back to his boyhood days in Caledonia, O., when a stick of peanut brittle was reckoned the last word in tasty confections. Anyway, the appetite for peanut candy, developed at that time, has never fully been satisfied, much less outgrown.

Learning from Mrs. Heber Votaw, a sister of the president, of his insatiable appetite for peanut brittle, Mrs. Walter C. John, wife of the secretary of the Highway Education Board, an expert in home-made candies, made up a special batch for him. After she had it prepared she sought a fancy box, appropriate for a gift to the White House, in which to pack it. But Mrs. Votaw demurred.

"Don't fix it up fancy," she said. "Warren will like it a lot better if you just pack it in an old breakfast-food box."

Which was done. The breakfast-food box full of peanut brittle sure enough found the place of honor in the executive desk.

As a publicist, getting advertising for his products outside the paid advertising columns, Henry Ford long ago outclassed all contenders. He made the Ford name and the operations of the Ford plant news.

Having entrenched the flivver in the news columns, it now appears Henry may have the same sort of program up his sleeve for promoting the name and fame of the big, high-priced car he also manufactures—the Lincoln.

Anyway, when he was in Washington a few weeks ago, he called at the old house on Tenth street, where Abraham Lincoln died. In this historic house O. H. Oldroy has built up a large collection of Lincoln relics. Congress from time to time has talked about taking it over as a public collection, but somehow never has seemed to find the money.

Ford looked the collection over—then offered Oldroy $50,000 cash for it. Oldroy is thinking it over. He would like to see the collection, on which he has spent years, go into government hands. But, frankly, the expense of gathering and maintaining it has been heavy. Maybe—Well, anyway, Ford's offer still stands.

The reaction? Think this over: Will a good Republican Congress and a patriotic Republican president permit Henry Ford, a Democrat, to obtain possession, either for private or public purpose, of the most valuable collection of Lincoln in existence? Or will Congress decide to do something handsome for the Oldroy collection instead?

Oldroy thinks it's worth waiting until after the next session to see. But in the meantime the names Henry Ford and Lincoln will have become fixed in the public mind, perhaps as interchangeably as are now "Ford" and 'flivver.'

And, as stated, Henry is also making Lincoln motor cars!

The guard at the Pan-American Building scratched his head in perplexity. Was he going dippy? Or was his heart bad?

"Please say it again," he said to the lorgnetted dowager who had hailed him for information. "You say you want to see the fur-lined room? This ain't no storage house, his is the Pan-American Building."

"My dear man," the woman explained, "I wish to see the fir-lined room. Eff-i-arr—Oregon fir, not Eff-u-arr!"

"Oh—oh—now I get you," light of understanding dawning on the guard's comprehension. "That's the big room with the fancy paneling. I guess this way, please."

How far Woodrow Wilson is looking into the future may be indicated by the announcement that he has accepted an invitation to speak at the Washington Day dinner of the Kansas State Democratic Club, Feb. 22, 1924.

Wilson spoke before this club Feb. 22, 1912. He was nominated and elected president later that year.

Which sequence, of course, may not mean anything; but there's a lot of superstition in politics and there's a lot of seekers for the significance of this announcement, both in Republican and Democratic circles.

CAME HOME TO DIE

"Three weeks ago I came home thinking 2 or 3 weeks would be my limit to live. I had suffered for 15 years from colic attacks and severe liver and stomach trouble. I happened to see an advertisement of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and purchased a bottle at the drug store and after taking the first dose, I felt better than I had for 15 years. I am now in the best of health—thanks to Mayr's Wonderful Remedy." It removes the catarrhal mucous from the intestinal tract, and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded at Lee's Drug Store and druggists everywhere.

REV. JOEL LEE JONES TO HOLD REVIVAL AT CHRISTIAN CHURCH

A series of revival meetings will begin at the Christian church Sunday morning and continue for two weeks. The Rev. Joel Lee Jones of Hollidays Cove, W. Va., will conduct the services. He is a leading minister of the Christian church and his ability is recognized throughout the South.

Rev. Jones is a native Kentuckian. Graduating from high school at Cynthiana, his education was continued at Transylvania and the College of the Bible where he graduated with the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1910. In 1913 he entered the pastorate at Logan W. Va., where he built up a large church membership and attendance.

It was in 1919 that he went to Hollidays Cove where he is at present the pastor of the First Christian church. His church has a total of four hundred members, more than half of whom have joined during his pastorate.

In addition to his work in the ministry, Rev. Jones has done much college educational work. He has been connected with Bethany College and the University of Kentucky. Nearly every year since he has been in West Virginia he has been a member of the state board in missionary work and he has been chosen to represent the state in the next General Convention.

Plans are being made to put on an extensive religious campaign here which will be wide spread. Prayer meetings are being held at the homes of members this week and conditions are becoming favorable for one of the most successful revivals ever conducted by the church.
